Sixteen Ex-Soldiers Among Those Granted Second Papers by Judge Grimm.

Thirty-eight were accepted for citizenship at the hearings held in circuit court here this week. 16 of them being ex-soldiers. Among the latter class was Pierpont J. E. Wood, this city, son-in-law of M. G. Jeffers. Although a native of the United States, born at Staughton, he was compelled to take out papers because he renounced his allegiance to America in 1918 to enlist in the Canadian army. A peculiar circumstance of his case is that six weeks after he signed up with the Canadians the armistice was signed. Five were alien enemies.

Only one man was not granted citizenship, his case being put over until the June term of court for failure to appear. He was Thorwald Gunderson, Clinton, who came here from Norway in 1902. The three prayer meeting groups of the M. E. church will unite in a meeting at the church Thursday evening.

FARMERS ORGANIZATIONS.
It is stated by its chiefs that the American Farm Bureau Federation has now 700,000 members. That is the largest organization, if the statement is true, ever brought together of the men representing the agricultural industry of the nation. Twenty-eight states are represented, we are told.

Farmers organizations as a rule have not proved either beneficial to themselves or lasting. There have been inherent weaknesses in all. One of the chiefest is the entrance into political contests with one or more of the "farm" leaders as candidates. Bitterness and dissension has followed, ending in failure to accomplish any real object, and generally to lose all the money and time put into the plan.

The American Society of Equity in Wisconsin, at the present moment, is a case in point. It is split into factions and each is bitterly fighting the other. Waste of money in the treasury, bankruptcy of the national organization, use of the society and its funds to further ambitions of several individuals—these are some of the things which will break the society into bits. In the meantime into this state, there has entered the Non-Partisan league from North Dakota and its organizers have been busy proselyting in the middle and northern counties especially. What bearing on elections these strangers will have is yet unknown. It is claimed the leaders are inclined to support La Follette. But even that will eventually wear itself out.

The newest and largest society of farmers has for its object many things other than politics. The trend of population to the cities, the reduction in production, scarcity of farm labor, high cost of living, marketing and transportation of crops, are questions to be settled. And to belong to this federation one cannot be a lawyer-farmer, a "gentleman" farmer who does it just to see the things grow; he must be a genuine dyed-in-the-wool farmer. And no reds or radicals or other enemies of the American form of government are either wanted or will be tolerated. That sounds like an organization worth while and of some lasting qualities.

WOMAN'S WORK BROADENED.
When at the beginning of the war women entered various avenues of employment hitherto not open to them and took the place of men called to the army, it was believed that this widening of woman's sphere of labor was but temporary and that with the end of strife they would relinquish their places and resume former lines of effort. Yet a fear was felt by men whose jobs had been taken by women that the latter might insist on retaining them permanently.

That neither view was correct has been demonstrated by the lapse of time. Women did retire from many positions for which they were least adapted, and gave way to men, but the effect on the whole has been to greatly widen the range of woman's employment compared with pre-war times. Also in some cases women did hold on to jobs when the men returned, though the latter in view of the demand for workers had no difficulty in obtaining employment elsewhere.

While their part in industrial and business life has assumed greater proportions, the effect of the war also undoubtedly widened the horizon of vast numbers of women whose life is in the home. The Red Cross and other relief work that united the labors of women gave a vision to thousands of work for the benefit of humanity at large that in no less degree benefited the worker.

And it is largely in recognition of the broader field that women have occupied that the movement to advance them to equal rights with men is so near realization. The woman worker and the woman in the home have come into an enlarged sphere as a result of the war.

THE COMPROMISE WITH MURDER.
No matter what the terms of the peace treaty with Turkey may eventually be, permission of the Sultan and his government to remain in Constantinople, brands it as a makeshift and a compromise with the devil. Turkey has always been saved when in a critical situation by Great Britain. In Egypt are some millions of Mohammedans, in India several million more, in other possessions the tenure of which is maintained by force there is always the menace which comes of any religion that is fanatical.

In 1877 Russia had defeated and crushed Turkey. For a decade the world had been horrified at the Bulgarian atrocities. They were the precursor of the Armenian massacres. The aim was against Christians in Armenia. Russia was entitled to the fruits of her victory—the abolition of the Turk from Europe. Here into the scene steps Great Britain. Dismissal with Bismarck refused to allow the Russ to receive the fruits of victory. The British had been clamoring against the Bulgarian horrors. Then they clamored against Russia occupying so strategic a position as Constantinople. That was the time to shear the Turk of power. Had it been done there would have been no Near East massacre and starvation as now, no Turkey in the war and no menace of Mohammedan uprising as at present. True to form, therefore, Great Britain intervenes again between the world's wish to have Turkey destroyed and her own selfish interests.

One of the signs of the times is the overwhelming defeat of the labor candidate for mayor in Seattle. He

THE MAN AND HIS NEIGHBOR
He had gold in his pocket and blue skies above him. A wife who was true and his children to love him. No mortgage to fret him, no burden of sorrow. Or hint of disaster to darken tomorrow. And so he set forth with a smile of delight. And vowed to himself that his world was all right!

There was reason, of course, for his sweet satisfaction. He thought there was nothing to call him to action. He'd a right to be merry and dance if he cared to. And let them find fault with his conduct who dared to. He had fought for his fortune, and earned it, and so he was free from the world and its burdens of woe.

But one there was called to him out of the distance: "Stranger, come quickly and give me assistance! The foes of injustice and malice assail me, I am battered and bruised and shall die if you fail me! And though he was care-free and blue was his sky, He knew in his heart he'd no right to go by.

Day after day and through every tomorrow, He woke to find neighbors in trouble and sorrow. Pious cares he must shoulder and wrongs to be righted. And learned that in honor not one could be slighted; And this was the lesson he soon came to know— No true man can rest while another's in woe.

was the leader of the strike last year and supposed to be the strongest man the labor party could put up. But the men in the labor organizations did not support him and the others would not, the result being a defeat by 16,000 against. Politicians trying to use the laboring men as a political cat's paw will fail signally.

Filram Johnson seems to be making himself more impossible as a presidential candidate each day that he speaks. News that he is holding hands with the Non-Partisan league in Dakota will practically disqualify him in a republican national convention.

Econ. Chas. Mulberger of Watertown, author of that touching prose-poem, the Mulberger bill, is a candidate for national delegate on the democratic ticket. Boy, page Governor Edwards; we want to introduce him to Mr. Mulberger.

Dean Comstock of the department of astronomy at the state university says the daylight saving idea is absurd. Probably so to a man who has to sit up nights to study the stars.

So the former American consul was killed by mistake in Mexico. They have been careless like that for a long time.

No one has yet mentioned that perhaps Mary Pickford's ex-husband was Owen Moore than he could pay. Well, here it is.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Hoover will like America well enough to remain here after the campaign.

Adam and Maj. Schroeder so far hold the records for taking a fall.

Their Opinions

Appleton must have houses. Not a scattering few, but houses by the hundred. It must provide homes for the many people who are seeking to locate and to live here, and who are daily being turned away in numbers which are not only discouraging, but surely prophetic of what will happen to this city unless something is done to change the situation.—Appleton Post-Crescent.

Great Britain seems to be having a hard time forcing "home rule" on Ireland. First it offered the Irish a separate parliament; now it offers them two parliaments. But the bid will have to be raised.—Manitowish Herald-News.

Silk shirts going up to $25.00? This troubles no one, because the millionaires won't pay it, and plumbers, miners, and steel workers won't let a little thing like that bother them.—Marquette Eagle-Star.

What is an American ideal? The quickest answer we can think of is a little farm well tilled and a little wife well willed. Who can improve it?—Eau Claire Leader.

Hard roads so greatly facilitate the movement of commodities that the country can afford to spend a very large sum to improve its highway facilities.—Sheboygan Press.

There is one sure way to beat the rent profiteer—simply buy a home and pay the rent to yourself.—Oshkosh Northwestern.

It would be against Japan's principles to fight the United States, as the United States is too big.—Superior Telegram.

Backward Glances

Forty Years Ago
March 5, 1880.—Miss Minnie Guernsey gave a few readings a few nights ago in Dubuque. The press speaks very highly of her ability in this line.—There were some surveys in town today, working for the Northwestern railroad company. They have been surveying between here and Afton and it is expected that the company will soon state on what terms they will construct a line between these two points.

Thirty Years Ago
March 5, 1890.—Dr. W. H. Palmer was elected a member of the fire police at their meeting last night, in the place of James A. Fathers, resigned. They will give a dance soon after Lent.—Joseph Barron, a young man of this city, has been missing for a week. He was last seen on High street, near the Grand Hotel.

Twenty Years Ago
March 5, 1900.—The farm residence of S. H. John, on the Emerald Grove road, was robbed late last night or early this morning, and about $26 in cash and other articles, such as clothing, were stolen. No trace has been found of the thieves.—Janesville's new military company has been assigned the letter "I" by the state. Charles Achterberg is captain.

Ten Years Ago
March 5, 1910.—Mrs. Cyrus Miner, a former resident of this city, died in California, where she has made her home, according to word received here by friends.—The necessary amount of stock for the Manito Auto company of Chicago has been subscribed in the city and the company will move here soon and begin manufacturing.

Habana Streets

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director

Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Habana, Cuba, March 5.—To the visitor who has just landed and goes for his first stroll along the Prado, the leading Cuban industries seem to be the purveyors of the squares and the shining of shoes.

This impression will be corrected when he pushes up some of the narrow business streets with their stores of all kinds, but of the Prado and of the principal squares it is certainly true. You can turn in anywhere and buy the best cigars in the world at amazingly low prices, and you can generally get food and drink at the same place, while it is never more than 30 or 40 feet to a shoe. Habana must support more bootblacks per thousand of population than any other city in the world. And they are all kept fairly busy too.

Improves Spare Time
The term bootblack does not seem to apply to these gentlemen of comparative leisure, each of whom owns a chair for his customer and another for himself. Between shines he almost always presents a book or a newspaper, or a book or a newspaper, and he will invariably go and ask the nearest bootblack. He will then write the necessary information in Spanish from the type who has been carried for the purpose. The visitor gives it to a jitney driver, and he promptly set down at his destination.

It is a Dignified Bootblack
The Cuban shoeshiner is an interesting country of the type who practices the same calling in our American midst. The shoeshiner in the United States is often a poor fellow, but the Cuban is an independent and dignified operator. He sits down to the job, and having finished one shoe he leans back in his chair and looks at the vicinity of the other. Neither does he affect the vigorous rubbings and shoppings of the vulgar American bootblack. His attitude toward shoe leather is contemplative rather than aggressive. He is more an artist than an athlete. He takes a long time and does a perfect job, and though he does not go in for a high lustré. He also foregoes the heroic labor of brushing your clothes. "No go away with the innkeeper, but your shoes have been shined by one who is a gentleman and a scholar, and is saving his energy for some great effort to be made in the future."

Policeman Is Heroic
The policeman who cooperates with the tourist in a search for where you want to go is also worthy of a word. He is a man of enormous appearance, who carries an enormous six-shooter or a couple of shotguns, and his clothes in addition to his club; but his severe look is deceptive. He never bothers anyone. He is not heard telling people to move on, or get back, nor does he blow around and peer into windows and rattle doors. He discharges his duty as a coolly and with congenial company and standing there.

You get the impression that nothing less than murder or a serious case of insanity would lead into activity, and to a man from a country where the carrying of a brief case makes one an object of suspicion, and where a shabby suit is a mark of one's conversation and reading are subject to censorship, this unassuming attitude on the part of the police is a welcome relief. The fact of the matter is that the vanishing boon of personal liberty may still be enjoyed in Cuba to a surprising extent.

Next to the ubiquitous bootblack the thing which most strikes the eye of the visitor is the vast swarm of jitneys which cover the streets. They are more completely justified city on the face of the earth. You can catch a jitney in two minutes literally anywhere in Habana. They are along both sides of the main streets in waiting lines. They dart and circle about the squares like minnows in a clear pool. They are the hardest jitneys on earth to dodge. The reason for this is that traffic in Habana moves on principles which it takes years to grasp.

The Spanish custom is for all sorts of vehicles to keep on the left side of the road, and this custom still obtains in most Spanish-speaking countries. In Habana it appears to have come in conflict with the American ideas that one should travel on the right hand side of the street. On some streets traffic keeps to the right and on others it keeps to the left. There must be some underlying system, but it cannot be deduced by observation.

Pedestrians Have to Jump
When it comes to squares, all the traffic goes around one way, cutting the corners very fine, causing the unwary pedestrian to make many sudden jumps. The jitney drivers frequently collide with each other, but they seldom run down a pedestrian. A native desiring to cross a crowded street must go to an English fashion, putting his safety entirely in the hands of the drivers, who exhibit great skill in missing him.

Service Is Really Good
The jitney service is really good. For you can go almost anywhere in the city for 20 cents, and 30 cents will take you even to outlying points, while to get a car you have but to raise one finger. To insure an English speaking driver is almost impossible.

Next to the jitney, the American product which has made the most complete conquest of Habana is the ugliest of all headgear, the chip straw hat. In Habana you can buy a real Panama hat for 20 cents, and there are other native weaves pleasing in line and easy on the head which can be bought still cheaper.

There are many reasons why the Cuban chooses the hard straw with its milkman shape and its tendency to check the circulation of the blood and to prevent baldness. A large crowd in Habana viewed from an upstairs window looks like a river of flat straw hats, not one head in a hundred showing anything but the top of a hat.

Delights Northern Eye
Habana is a city which delights the northern eye by reason of its complete lack of trees and flowers. There are no skyscrapers and all of the large buildings are highly ornate, with columns and cupolas and arches and arches with towers, and always with a courtyard in the center where palms grow and fountains play. All of this pleasing color is washed away by the smoke and the glare of a tropical sun, except along the business streets which are so narrow.

Hungary "But a Shadow" of Former Self

Map shows Hungary after the war and today, key indicating old and new territory.

The frontiers of Hungary, as agreed in accordance with the new treaty of peace, are so drawn as to exclude nearly all the mountains and hill country from the dominions of the Magyars. Their rich and fertile plain—the Alföld—is for the most part left to them, but even of this certain districts are withdrawn in favor of the autonomous Ruthenian districts of Czechoslovakia. In the north, of Tago-Slovakia, in the south and of Rumania in the southeast. The map gives an idea of the change.

We see that W. J. Jr.'s yacht has been held up by the government authorities and relieved of $15,000, or is it $15,000,000, worth of old-fashioned inspiring. The report says that W. J. Jr. was not aboard the yacht at the time, which in our opinion is the greatest example of self-sacrifice ever brought to light in the history of this world. How a man can own that much and keep away from it, especially in these times, will never be quite clear to our rather feeble intellect.

A pretty Louisville gift, upon the announcement of the verdict of the jury in his favor, got up and kissed her lawyer. Our personal opinion is that it is a demand for higher than that, in view of the present high cost of kisses quoted in the average breach of promise case, that a lawyer in such a position, furthermore, is a mean old thing.

FAITHFUL OLD POLICE DOG IS KILLED

Janesville policemen today mourned the death of a patient and faithful old comrade, one who has stood by them through thick and thin for the past 14 years. "Knute" is dead. The third oldest member of the department in point of years of service has answered "bap." Pneumonia combined with a gutrot and old age—he was nearly 15 years old—made his suffering yesterday too severe to bullet from the revolver of Officer Tom King ended his life. Chief Morrissey and King were the only mourners at the funeral, which was held at Goose Island yesterday afternoon. "Knute," a Chesapeake spaniel, first entered police service in 1905. He was brought down here by Knute Gage from Port Atkinson and given to William Appleby, who was then chief of police. He was the chief in Mr. Gage's pocket. When Mr. Appleby left the force, "Knute" was loaned to leave so he was turned over to

George Appleby who succeeded his brother as chief. He later served under E. H. Ransom, Peter D. Champion and Thomas Morrissey, in their terms as head of the department. Of all his masters, "Knute" seemed to love Capt. Champion the most. He tagged him wherever he might go. "Knute" was always noted for his unusual animal instinct. If he gave a growl while lying in the station policemen would a minute later hear a "bum" enter the front door looking for a "hop." Through some peculiar instinct he was able to tell a suspicious character was coming without even seeing him.

HOPES OF WETS ARE GIVEN DOUCHE

It is not under obligation to the whiskey and beer interests. It is hard to find and probably no one can be found in the wet column who is there from any other but the cold business reason that the amendment and the Volstead act have killed the business of making and selling liquors. That seems to be all there is to it. The source of the opposition to the dry laws is found in every case in the rich, and powerful interests which have made money out of beer, wine and whiskey.

Issue in Every Contest
There does not seem to be much danger in the selection of delegates who will support the dry laws but the congressional contests in every district in the United States will have the issue injected. The organization of liquor interests now is to get after and defeat the men who in congress have voted for the time prohibition and opposed any measure of relief for the liquor interests.

Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writers' names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

SAVE THE WRAPPER—IX

I have expatiated in several talks upon the importance of the natural sebum or skin oil secreted by the sebaceous glands of the skin and scalp, and the importance of this oily substance in keeping the skin soft, clean, smooth, warm and beautiful. It is equally important in keeping the hair clean, lustrous and beautiful.

A great many young women—their mothers and even their grandmothers—have been misled by the false promises of the cosmetics which destroy the natural skin oil. A great many of these women, by the use of these cosmetics, have been attributing imaginary beautifying effects to all sorts of greasy and greasy-looking cosmetics and adding fuel to the fire of the skin disease which the natural secretion of the sebum is likely to be a little excessive. A young woman has to be slightly above the moron grade of intelligence in order to realize that she can't keep her face except through the use of cosmetics.

As we begin to get along, not so much in years as in dignity, let us say, that false dignity which makes us old before our time, we tend to dry up. The skin and hair are less oily than in earlier years, and various skin or excessive dryness due to lack of sebum, or the use of a lack of skin oil add to our constantly increasing collection of tribulations.

What kind of grease or oil is best to apply to skin or scalp to relieve this scaly state? All sorts of preparations have been suggested and used with more or less satisfaction. As I have said in an earlier talk in this column, a fresh, nude cold cream, prepared by a skilled pharmacist on order, after the formula and method given in my book, "The Science of Cosmetics," is the best. It is the official name for "Cold Cream." (Readers will please not ask me to give the recipe for cold cream for it can't be satisfactorily made except by the pharmacist.)

The drawback about the natural sebum is that they do not last as long on the skin. They dry up too quickly, or disappear by attrition or are absorbed in any appreciable amount, contrary to a popular fancy. This is why they are not so springy, not in sufficient amount to make the skin unpleasantly

Waffles.
Waffle making is an art, difficult if you will, but not at all impossible to master.

The cooking of the waffle and the mixing of the batter are the important parts. The waffle iron must be scrupulously clean to begin with. Heat it, then rub it with a piece of salt pork or a little piece of butter wrapped in a piece of clean gauze or cheesecloth. Every part of the iron must be greased, and one way to make sure of this is to close the iron so that the melted fat will run into all crevices. Then fill the iron when it is smoking hot with the batter, about two-thirds full. Shut the iron and cook for one or two minutes on each side.

So much for the cooking. Here is one recipe for the batter. Sift three cups of flour, a teaspoon of cream of tartar and a teaspoon of salt. Beat two eggs light. Dissolve half a teaspoon of soda in half a cup of water and add to the milk, then add to the flour and also add the eggs and a tablespoon of butter. Beat thoroughly, for the batter must be very smooth.

Here is another waffle batter. Mix well a quart of sifted flour and three teaspoons of baking powder. Add one cup of milk, three beaten eggs and enough milk to make a thin pouring batter.

Waffles may be served in many ways, and if different sweets are desired to serve with them they make a very acceptable dessert a couple of times a month, and may also be satisfactorily for breakfast.

Served with strained honey they are perhaps, best of all, although maple syrup is also delicious with them.

They can be slightly salted and served with fried chicken with good results. They can be sprinkled with granulated sugar and cinnamon sifted together.

They can be served with butter and sugar.

MEAT DISHES.
Lang Tongues. Place two lamb's tongues in a saucepan of cold water and cook slowly until tender; remove skins and grind meat. Add milk, cream, pork, bacon, ham, fat meats and gravies, sugar, candy, nutmeg, concentrated nutmeg. Yeast is very nutritious, and in some cases seems to stimulate nutrition and gain in weight. A diet adopted with the view to increase or reduce weight should not be based on this kind, but rather the nutritive value of the total amount of food ingested each day is to be regarded, not the quantity of food increased or decreased.

Fresh Air.
Which is better for a girl with TB to sleep in a hot air furnace heater room with windows closed? (Miss S. M.)

ANSWER.—Always have the windows open, but always sleep comfortably. This applies not only to one with tuberculosis, but to every one.

now and live in the home of your fiancé's parents would give you a wrong start. They may like you very much, but this is another thing to arise if you try living together. You and the young man are both too young to marry anyway.

It seems to me that you will be happier if you tell your parents about your engagement. If they put you out of the home, you can work and live somewhere else. Since you know you are right in your love, do not be afraid to admit it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 16 and have been going with a young man of 18 for nine months. We loved each other, dearly. One showed jealousy when we were together.

The last time we were together at a dance there was another girl who always chose him for her partner. From that time he never came to visit me.

He is fatherless and motherless and is with his brother. He has a fortune by himself, but he doesn't enjoy spending his money as some others do.

I am a very lonesome. He hasn't been here for two weeks. I can get other boys if I end my love with him. What would you advise?

HEART-BROKEN.
Since the young man has "ended" his love with you, it would seem advisable for you to forget about him. As you say, some one else will probably like you if he doesn't.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me what is good to remove scars from the skin on the face? I am troubled and would be grateful for a lotion of some kind to remove them. GRATEFUL.

Some scars can be removed by the use of an electric needle. The matter is so serious, however, that you would have expert advice before permitting any one to touch your face with the needle.

NOVEL LINES MARK THIS SPRING SUIT

By ELOISE.

Although American women and tailors suits are particularly good friends, there are some American women who wear that very popular type of garment from their wardrobes. For these women the fashion suit and costume suits are designed.

These suits are usually individual and distinctive models and are often of such unusual lines that they are good for but one season. It means therefore that only the woman who has unlimited means can discard the fashion suit in favor of the fashion costume.

Here is one of the newer models of this type for dress wear. Several new features are combined in this costume to produce the new silhouette for spring. Note the kimono sleeves which have a deep cuff extending to the elbows, the buck blouse coat and the novel neckline and fastening. The coat is heavily embroidered all over and is completed by the addition of a vest of tulle or lace. A small flowered turban is worn with it and then the lady is ready for the street, the afternoon tea or a formal call.

PRIMA DONNA SUES TO ANNUL MARRIAGE

She states in her complaint that when she married him in Minnesota Dec. 3, 1914, she had no legal right to marry because a final decree of divorce from a previous husband had not been entered at the time.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOË BECKLEY.

"Mrs. Pardoe, what kind of a girl is Rose Green?" I asked my visitor today.
"Oh, a snitch of a critter, if I do say it, and she the child of my half-brother Nataniel," answered Agatha. "She's got it into her head that the Corners ain't good enough for her. Wants to go to New York."

"I know. She has asked my husband to give her letters of introduction and advice, and all that. I only wondered if she was well, perfectly sane in waiting to go, or whether she was—was only—"

"Bamboozing Salsbery," finished Mrs. Pardoe briskly. "I don't blame you for asking. Rose is my half-niece, but that don't keep me from seeing she's bent on gettin' what she likes to call 'the full life.'"

"Now, Rose's idea of the full life is having a string of men tramping after her. She don't look it—oh, no. She looks just like a picture I got in my kitchen once. It ain't natural."

When a girl's got real feelin' it makes little marks in her face—lines and shadows. When a face ain't nothing but a mask, I say, with you for askin'! Rose is my half-niece, but that don't keep me from seeing she's bent on gettin' what she likes to call 'the full life.'"

"You surely she isn't interested in married men?" I remarked.
Mrs. Pardoe shrugged her lean shoulders and bit off her thread with a snap. "There ain't much in Hammonds Corners to choose from," she replied noncommittally. "Some girls just play the game for the game's sake, not meaning anything in particular; just keepin' their hands in, as the saying goes."

"Then I'd urge him to," said Agatha Pardoe looking up earnestly from her sewing. "Every woman in the Corners'd be grateful to you! I ain't saying anything against Rose Green's character, understand, Miss Salsbery. I'm her half-aunt. But there's some girls that's like flies in the kitchen; they don't do no good, they pester the life out of you, messin' round and gettin' in your road, and you can't get rid of 'em no matter where you swat."

"Would a girl like Rose be safe in New York?"
"She ain't safe anywhere! She'll get what she's after wherever she is. She'd do less mischief in New York where they're used to mischief, than down here in Hammonds Corners, where everything shows up so!"

"I'll speak to Jim about her," I said, a feeling of resentful determination coming over me.
"It's a good thing your Jim ain't an impressionable man. He's very heavy, but that ain't men ain't impressionable to some extent—husbands especially. But the sort Mr. Salsbery is, is like damp wood; he takes considerable work to get 'em lighted. Yes—I'd encourage him to find a situation for Rose in New York if I was you."

"I don't know whether to be amused or worried over Agatha Pardoe's talk. I guess I'll laugh. Ha, ha."

Plans for bird houses are simple. It would be well to read the article in Monday's Gazette written by James Franklin of Jamesville on this subject. It will help.

You would not make the same kind of a bird house for a wren as you would a robin. It is hoped that every house around which there are trees will have a home for the birds this spring. They will come back next year and years after and make the permanent residence there. Help!

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl almost twenty years of age. Since last summer I have kept company with a nice young man of twenty-one. I love him dearly and it would break my heart to give him up. We have been engaged a short time.

My parents object to my seeing him and refuse to let him come to see me. They do not know we are engaged and I am waiting for a good opportunity to tell him.

I have met his parents and they like me very much and have no objection to my marrying. If we get married now, as my friend wishes, we can make our home with his parents until we wish to go to house-keeping. Would you advise me to marry him now and live with his parents for a time, or wait a year or so until we can have a home of our own?

As my parents object to my seeing him, we have met each other without their knowing about it. We can't see each other often enough and so my friend wants to marry in the early spring. Would you advise me to do that? I have thought of doing it, but I think I would be turned out of my home.

I am sure he will make me happy and give me a good home, and so I will be willing to lose my home and marry him.

Do you think my parents are unjust to me?

Would I be taking a misstep if I told them about our secret engagement and then married him very soon?

My parents have some very good reason for doubting the young man's character. It seems to me their position is unjust.

Wait a year or two until you can have a home of your own. To marry

LAKOTAS IN BEST STYLE OF SEASON

(BY FRANK SINCLAIR)

There was lots of dancing down at Beloit last night. Not all of it was to the tunes of the Lakota club orchestra. A considerable amount of it, the most important quantity of it, was to the music of the team work of the Cardinals. The time was set in parts of 22 with the Beloit Fairies getting only 10 of those portions on the Cards.

Lakotus in Fine Form

From the outset of the contest, the Lakotus displayed a form more impressive than that of any other team this season, which means that one of the prettiest basket games ever seen in this vicinity was pulled off.

From the start, the Lakotus was in the pink of trim. The combination worked with clock-like precision except in only very few instances. Passing was so good that the opposing team's guarding was like glue. But this does not mean that the Puries were out of sight. They played a hard game and at least one or two of them could not overcome the dashing work of the Cards.

By the great guard game of the Cards, the Lakotus shot the Dalton, Phillips, and Shattuck. The Dalton was told to go home basket. Dalton stuck tighter than a leach. He so pestered the life out of the East Dakota center that Phillips had to take the place of Dalton in the scoring.

Sensational Plays. Sensational plays were the feature of the game. Both baskets of the Fairies were "can" shots. Roy Williams, playing his last game with the Jakotas of the second half, executed a series of all his twirling-pivots in the second half, but unfortunately it did not get the basket he was after. Brown, playing a corking good game for Janeville at center, made a swift dribble down the length of the floor for a pretty good shot. Hermoddy followed with a beautiful, clean shot beyond the center of the floor in the second half that never looked as if it had any chance of being done.

The Cards opened the scoring with a tremendous burst of speed when in the first 20 seconds Williams crashed through the first field basket. He was followed in a half minute by Dermody. With this flashing start, the Fallies seemed to have the heart taken out of them, for a few minutes, when the Lakotas kept on piling them in one after the other until the score at 10 minutes stood 12-0 in favor of Janesville. The work of the Cards held Beloit to three baskets in the Lakota's 10.

With the Jansenville fans crazy and the team working smoothly, Traffort, the Belmont center, substituted. Then, "the luck of the Gate" city changed immediately when on Dalton's foul, Tilley made a free throw. Phillips had been trying the foul goals but kept missing them. When he missed the last one, he tried to get going and go they did when Zabel on rapid work, left alone and unguarded, made the only goal of the Fairies for the night which was the last of the Cards.

When the second half opened the Cards kept the ball on their sector, a trick which they had been able to work throughout the opening period and continued to the close of the game.

The sphere was Jansenville's three-quarters of the time.

However, for a few minutes of the second half the Janesville boys looked as if they were going to drop, but they pulled themselves together and after the enemy got four points from them there while they moved onward toward the 22 of the final score.

Morgan Off

While Morgan played a fair game for the Cards all forward last night, he was not so good as the Janesville fans expected. His precision in passing was weak and his eye bad. His regular position is that of a center, which may account for his falling out of style.

Following the game, a dance was held at Cosmo hall with the music furnished by the Lakota club orchestra. A special interurban brought the crowd back at 1 a. m.

Littick refereed the whole game. Sennott declining.

Rollie Williams, star running guard of the Lakota Cardinals, played his last game of the season here last night. Today he is rushing to California to be at the bedside of a brother who is seriously ill.

Just before the game Rollie received a telegram from Los Angeles informing him of his brother's condition. He refrained from letting the other members of the team know about it until after the contest. The telegram was received about 10:30 a.m. after the game. Williams' playing not being affected in the least degree.

He expects to star in California until June or July returning in the fall to continue his education at the university.

Whitewater, March 5.—Evanston high school defeated Fort Atkinson in a swift game in the tournament here this morning 11-8. The contest was hotly played with the score at half time 4-1 in favor of Evanston. Oregon, and Madison goes against University high. Much interest is shown in this latter game because it will be the first time in three years that the two Capitol city teams have played each other.

Tonight Brodhead plays Fort Atkinson. The losers of the Oregon-Madison game meet the losers of the Madison-University high game.

(By Special Correspondent)

Platteville, March 5.—Monroe high school's fast basketball aggregation lived up to expectations by coming through with a brilliant victory last night over Monticello in the first game of the Platteville tournament, 29 to 8. The victory was an easy one with everything in the Green county team's favor from the outset. The right forward, standing in the key field goal, outscored all other baskets were equally divided between Carr, Hauser and Wood. Monroe started off with a substitute team, throwing in their regulars in the second half.

DIAMOND CUT DIAMOND

By JANE BUNKER

Copyright by the Tobbs-Merrill Co.

Meantime I remembered that I had not come home with Claire. I had the slipper all that time. Then came the letter asking me to do her a great favor. I went to her house that Sunday evening at eight o'clock. The letter arrived on Sunday morning, special delivery.

I went, but I never once mentioned the slipper. I was the last thing in my mind as I rang the bell. Mrs. Delario herself admitted me. She was waiting for her Sunday evening out, and what between welcoming handshakes and Mrs. Delario's click of my coat and insisting on my taking off my hat and "being comfy" and my declining, and her insisting on my taking the source room Claire had told me about, and my astonishment at second sight, she was near to me and the chance to speak of them went by.

The source room was as queer to my eye as it seemed to have been to Claire's. I think the impression upon me was that of a room in a remote from the bustling life of the great city in the midst of which it was as if it had been in the heart of a desert.

But Mrs. Delario left me but little time for observation, merely remarking that she had a great deal to tell me. I thought of her, and of her and many things about her, and while I was considering my answer Mrs. Delario propounded a question that I could not answer: "Do you think the girl could be a thief?"

"Oh, never—never in the world. What—Claire?" I cried hotly, and the picture of the high-bred girl came before me. I could as soon have thought my own sister a thief. Nevertheless I was soon at a loss to explain the episodes Mrs. Delario told me.

On the steamer, for instance, she had twice caught Claire turning over things in her—Mrs. Delario's—suitcase. Claire excused it once by saying she was accidentally put some of her own toilet articles in it by mistake while she was too sick to notice. But what finally brought about the crisis was this: A sister had given Mrs. Delario a ten-dollar bill in payment for a reading, and she had gone hastily to her for change, and returning had left her bedroom door ajar and a quantity of bills lying on the bureau she hadn't stopped to put back into her purse. The moment she had shown the sister out she went back to replace her purse and found Claire in her room. Claire was in the act of closing the wardrobe door and said she was looking for her money. Mrs. Delario was in Mrs. Delario's wardrobe?

"But did she steal any money?" I demanded, almost in fear of the reply.

BILLY WHISKERS

A FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

Oh, my! What a thirst the feast of pop-cool had given Billy Whiskers. And he did not know where to get a drink unless he went and stole it out of the elephant's tub, or water. He walked up to the table and seeing a stick of red stuff that looked like candy, he ate it, but it turned out to be a stick of red paint that the leading lady used to paint her lips. After tasting her powder, and upsetting her bottle of perfume, and chewing her blonde wig, thinking it some kind of yellow grass, he walked out without awakening her.

Next he went into a tent that had a small table with a looking-glass hanging above it, but when Billy saw his reflection in it, he did not make the mistake of thinking it was another goat like he had once before. He walked up to the table and seeing a stick of red stuff that looked like candy, he ate it, but it turned out to be a stick of red paint that the leading lady used to paint her lips. After tasting her powder, and upsetting her bottle of perfume, and chewing her blonde wig, thinking it some kind of yellow grass, he walked out without awakening her.

YOUR FRECKLES

Need Attention in March or Face May Stay Covered.

Now is the time to take special care of the complexion if you wish to look well the rest of the year. The March winds have a strong tendency to bring out freckles that may stay all summer unless removed. Now is the time to use Othine—double strength—the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails. Get an ounce of Othine—double strength—and apply it at night when retiring, using enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all of your freckles will be gone, and after four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff, once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of pain, common liquid arvon from any drug store, and rub it on your scalp, apply it at night when retiring, using enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all of your freckles will be gone, and after four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

Dinner Stories

Gale Henry, comedy queen, enjoys reciting the following story:

Patrick was brought before the judge for stealing and killing and eating Widow Maloney's pig.

"Patrick," said the judge, "when you are brought face to face with Widow Maloney and her pig on judgment day, what account will you be able to give of yourself when the widow accuses you of stealing her pig?"

Resident Has Awful Experience

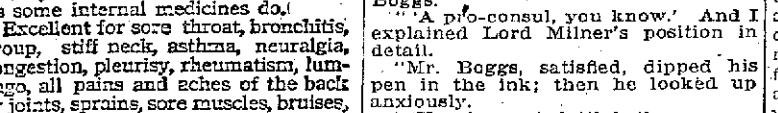

"I was twice confined in hospitals, in the last one nothing but gruel water was injected into me 4 times a day, as my stomach would not retain any food. I suffered terribly, was reduced to a skeleton. My folks saw and of course I was derided. Remedy and it has surely saved my life. I weigh 180 lbs. now." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Reliable Drug Co. Advertisements.

Pleasant Fields Of Holy Writ

First Quarter Lesson X: 1 John IV: 21. March 7, 1920.

Golden Text: Beloved if God so loved us we also ought to love one another. 1 John IV. 11.

JOHN WRITES ABOUT CITRUS.

The "beloved disciple" is true to type when he comes to write about love. His very soul is saturated with love. A strong affection for all men. Love is the essence of his being, his nature as breathing or heart-beating. His attachment to human beings is devoted, regulated, constant and consistent. That passion, that strong emotion which which possessed him to be a reflection not an attribute, but the very essence and substance of his being. No conception of God can be higher. Now as a child inherits his father's nature and is identified by the traits and characteristics that mark him as a child of God must be characterized by the Divine nature which is love. If a man affirms his love of God and yet hates his neighbor, he is a liar. But love in the beginning of the religious life is in embryo. It is capable of development and it is the parent of all other virtues. It arouses the Christians who are addressed to the work of devotion, intelligently and earnestly, cultivating this quality which they possess only in germ. They are to root out every passion that is hostile to it and let nothing grow in the soul that would absorb the love of God.

BRODHEAD LOSES
AT WHITEWATER

Whitewater, March 5.—With nearly 1,000 fans attending and yelling like mad, Oregon high school defeated the Brodhead aggregation 14 to 12 in the second game of the tournament at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The huge crowd which filled Hamilton gymnasium to its capacity was equally divided as to partisanship. One side "was strong for Brodhead," the other "on for Oregon."

Sweeney, Oregon right forward, scored 4 field goals for his team and his playing created a sensation as a star forward. Stair, Brodhead forward, was the star of the Green county team. His two field goals from the center were well placed and were caged when needed most by his team.

The opening of the second tournament game was slow and tedious. Oregon seemed to be playing superior ball in spite of the endeavor of the Brodhead five. The half ended, Brodhead 4, Oregon 11.

Brodhead entered the second half of play with more pep than expected in the first half. Slowly plugging away Brodhead came within one basket of tying the Dane county team. "Gold" Ben Oregon, a fast one basket, Brodhead was heard from the balcony of the gym. Playing a unusual defensive style of basketball, Oregon held and with 1,000 people on their feet the pistol was shot claiming Oregon the victor by one basket.

Line-up: Oregon (14) Brodhead (12) Sweeney, F. Stair, M. Miller, A. J. Ace, J. Taylor, L. Oshorn, Scheberle, Jansen, J. Marly, P. Stearns, Stephens, Field goals: Brodhead: Stair, 2; Miller, 2; Scheberle, 1; Oregon: Sweeney, 1; Ace, 1; Taylor, 1. Free throws: Miller, 2; Ace, 2. Referee: Malone, Normal; umpire, Talmier.

GRAIN

Chicago Review.
Although fresh advances took place today in the value of corn, profit taking by holders led to a reaction. The bullish influences were the strength in sterling exchange and the weakness in prices of cotton. The market was 14 cents a bushel, however, as compared with the lowest price of 13.40 cents a bushel, which was followed by a moderate general setback. Oats were governed chiefly by the market in corn. A few cents off to 3c advance, including July at 75c to 77c, the market underwent decline all around.

Provisions reflected the course of grain. Higher quotations on hogs had little apparent effect. Subsequently reports indicating that the blizzard was not nearly as bad as had been expected, the bulls at a disadvantage. Prices closed weak, 34c to 36c, net, for hams, with 34c to 36c, net, for shoulders, and 34c to 36c, net, for ribs.

FINANCE

Wall Street Review.
New York, March 5.—Early reactions on the stock exchange market did not extend beyond one to two points, the market being influenced by an increasing demand for motors, oils, and kindred specialties. General Motors took a commanding position in its rise of 8 1/2 to 25 1/2, and the new certificates of the company just listed on the exchange were firm at around 25. Rubber tire shares kept pace with the automobile group and Royal Dutch Shell Transport were added to the active petroleums. Steels and allied industries were inclined to drop, and falls also lagged. Call money opened at yesterday's rate of 2 percent, but exchange on London reacted slightly. Additions to yesterday's gains were quite small, the closing of today's stock market, although the rise was again mainly confined to oils, motor specialties and high priced specialties. The movement was attended by another advance in foreign exchange, primarily on account of demand bills on London ranging from 30 to 35 cents against yesterday's maximum of 32 to 33 cents. A few points marked the early dealings in Mexican and Pan American Petroleum. These companies, General Motors, Marine preferred and Canadian Pacific. Profit taking reduced many of these gains within the first half hour.

DODGERS OF TAXES HAVE LITTLE SHOW WITH UNCLE SAM

transaction, whether from the sale of land or securities or property of any kind or any class of services from teaching nights to working on the side after business hours, the man who paid you more than $500 must tell the government about it. And a staff of experts works all the time making a list of persons who didn't file returns. And some day a representative of the government will call on a few hundred thousands of our people and hand them a tax return already made out, which they neglected to do themselves, only the taxes will be much larger because there will be a penalty for non-payment of taxes long overdue.

Busy Fixing Up Penalties. There is a special division of the income tax bureau which does nothing else but think up penalties on persons who don't file the correct kind of return. Of course, allowance is made for error and for reasonable excuses in case of delayed returns. People who are sick or absent from the country and can make a sworn statement to that effect which is convincing to the collector of internal revenue in their respective districts can be exempted from penalty. But the government has a staff of experts who can sometimes tell at a glance whether a case looks suspicious and the return sheet is turned over to special investigators who make a careful examination of the case in question.

After Correct Returns. The government's aim is to get correct tax returns. If you have paid more than you should the government will call your attention to it just as quickly as if you have paid too little. The secretary of the treasury and the commissioner of internal revenue are authorized to accept compromise settlements. Where there is plainly no intention to defraud the government and where the mistake is simply one of computation, compromises are, daily being accepted.

Hundreds of millions of dollars are collected that way. And the importance of it is this: so long as the government doesn't get all the money it has estimated would be given to it by taxpayers, just so long must taxes be kept at high levels in order to pay national debts. Any one who evades his taxes, therefore, imposes a burden on his neighbor. It prolongs both the period of taxation as well as the era of high cost of living.

18,000 Check Up Returns. Fully 18,000 people are employed by the United States government to check up income tax returns. Three thousand are in Washington and 15,000 others, the majority are engaged throughout the year in the

Palmer Backs Wilson

A. Mitchell Palmer, standing, photographed while pleading before U. S. supreme court in government's suit to dissolve the packers' trust, leader Kresel, one of his assistants, is at the right.

In announcing his candidacy for democratic nomination for president in a telegram to Secretary Hiram L. Gardner of the Georgia state committee, Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer made it plain that he supports the record of the present administration "in every phase."

John Smith is looked up. The process is not merely to investigate each man. That would take too long. But each brokerage firm, for instance, must show how much it has paid to individuals in excess of $800. It must show how much individuals have paid to the brokerage firm. The government tabulators simply collect all the information about John Smith which comes from business firms or individuals in all parts of the country. Information about a taxpayer might come one day from Seattle and the next from Boston. Eventually it is all put together in the file of John Smith, with the exact address of the said John Smith, and if necessary the floor or flat of the building in which he lives in the event that there are two persons of the same name in the dwelling.

Of course, deputy collectors are possessed of "local knowledge" which enables them to assist investigators. A man who had enough money to buy a house and lot and automobile and didn't file an income tax return might find the deputy collector looking up the reason why. The staff of the income tax bureau throughout the United States is always looking for delinquents. It means more money due Uncle Sam that hasn't been paid and therefore lighter tax burdens for everybody else in the coming years.

Citizens Give Information.

Much information comes from citizens who happen to learn of fraudulent returns. In every case charges must be proved and a taxpayer has the right to appeal to the courts, but first he must pay his taxes, and if the court decides in his favor the government will refund. Any way you look at it, the government gets its taxes if it takes years to find it out. A few days ago, the executors and heirs of a certain estate filed an amended return. They had discovered an error in back returns. It was a partnership case.

"We can't jail a dead man," said one of the government officials, "but if that partner is still alive and he has filed the same kind of a tax return, he better file another return and pay up taxes due."
